EDITOR'S PREFACE.

The present volume contains all the coins which were issued by the Greek and Scythic kings who ruled in India and the neighbouring lands between the time of Alexander the Great and the third century A.D.

The work has been long and laborious, alike to compiler, editor, and printer. The number of unusual characters which it contains has greatly hindered its progress; but the typographical difficulties have not been the only ones. The history of the kings is very obscure, and the types employed on their coins often of a mixed and uncertain character. On the other hand, few fields of numismatics offer richer material, historical, archaeological, and even philological; though philological theories are necessarily excluded from these pages.

Special thanks are due to General Cunningham, R.E., who has allowed the compiler free use of his plates published in recent volumes of the Numismatic Chronicle, and has thus enabled the present work to be rendered far more complete than it could otherwise be: also to Professor Cecil Bendall, who has given valuable philological aid.

The system of transliteration adopted for Prakrit words is that used by Professor Aufrecht in the Sanskrit Catalogue of the Bodleian Library; also in the Catalogue of Books in the British Museum.

I have carefully revised the manuscript of this work, comparing each coin with the corresponding description.

THE COINS

BACTRIA AND INDIA.

IN treating of the arrangement of the coins of the Greek and Scythic Kings of Bactria and India, it is necessary to enter briefly into all the known facts of their history. The Kings of the Seleucid and Ptolemaic dynasties succeeded one another in a known order, and the chief events of their reigns have been handed down to us by ancient writers. It was therefore unnecessary to give the facts of their history as an introduction to the lists of the coins issued by them. But in regard to all but two or three of the kings of the farther East, the ancient historians are quite silent; and coins and inscriptions alone save us from ignorance even of their names. Therefore it is necessary in this Introduction to trace the outlines of any history which can now be recovered, and in particular in some detail to set forth the historical facts which may fairly be established by means of the coins. In order to bring the discussion into the narrowest possible limits, it will be necessary (1) to abstain from mere conjecture, however tempting; (2) to avoid full discussion of disputed points, merely indicating where difference of opinion exists, and referring, when possible, to works already published, or monographs in various numismatic journals; (3) to treat in detail only such parts of history as have a numismatic bearing.

The writers to whom credit is due for the arrangement and decipherment of these coins are, in the first rank, James Prinsep* and General Alexander Cunningham.†

* Essays on Indian Antiquities.

† Coins of the Successors of Alexander, Numismatic Chronicle, 1868, &c.

Mr. E. Thomas,* Lassen,† and Wilson,‡ have also done much important work, both historical and numismatic, in the same field. The most recent monograph on the coins is that of von Sallet,§ whose scholarly acquirements and solid numismatic judgment have enabled him to correct on many points the theories of his predecessors. Mr. James Fergusson's and Professor Cowell's researches have also been of the greatest value to the present purpose; and there is much valuable matter in von Gutschmid's article on the Graeco-Parthian Empire in the ninth edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, s. v. Persia. When a debt is due to other writers, it will be mentioned in the foot-notes.

I. HISTORICAL OUTLINES.

The numismatics of the Greek rulers of India properly begins with Diodotus. But there are a few coins issued in India or neighbouring countries at an earlier period than his, which are, for convenience, included in this volume. Whether Alexander himself, during his sojourn in India, issued coins in his own name, may perhaps be doubted; but it is at least a plausible conjecture that certain bronze coins,|| bearing the usual types of Alexander and his name, but of square form, were issued in India, as the custom of issuing square coins already existed in India in Alexander's time, but in no other country. These pieces, then, unfortunately wanting in the British Museum, may be considered as the earliest Greek coins of India.

|| The conjecture is Dannenberg's, Zeitschr. f. Num. vi. 166 (note), who, however, gives the coins to Bactria. India is a far more reasonable attribution.

In recent years the region of Balkh (Bactria) has furnished an abundant supply of coins, issued by the immediate successors of Alexander in that district.* Among these are double darics, with Greek letters on the obverse; gold and silver coins of the first three Antiochi, with the types of a seated Apollo and of a horse's head; silver coins of Seleucus I., with types of a chariot of elephants and a horse's head; coins issued during the joint reigns of Seleucus and Antiochus I., bearing the names of both rulers; and gold money of an early king of the Persepolitan class, with Pehlvi legend.

Among these also have come to light a few coins, in gold and silver, of a king named Andragoras, who is conjectured to have been ruler of Parthia or one of the neighbouring countries in the early part of the third century B.C. The only ancient authority who mentions this king is Justin,† who states Andragoras to have been the name of (1) a Persian noble set up as Satrap of Parthia by Alexander, (2) a Satrap of Parthia overthrown eighty years later by the first Arsaces. It is more probable that the coins published in our catalogue belong to the period of the second of these rulers. The issue of gold coin shows that the ruler who issued them claimed a complete independence; and this is a further reason for assigning him to the time of the break up of the Seleucid empire in the East, about B.C. 250.

The coins of Sophytes were first published by Cunningham.‡ They are the more interesting because their date and place of issue can be approximately fixed. We learn from several of the historians of Alexander's reign that Sopheithes, or Sophytes, ruled a district on the banks of the Acesines at the time of Alexander's invasion, and was confirmed by the latter in the possession of it. But Sophytes' coins are copied from the issues, not of Alexander, but of Seleucus. It would appear from them that Sophytes renewed with Seleucus, very probably on the occasion of that king's eastern expedition against Sandracottus, the friendship which he had established with Alexander.

After this expedition, for the period of a century, that is to say during the third century before our era, India proper was governed altogether by native rulers; the power of the Seleucidae and Greek kings of Bactria stopping at the Indian Caucasus.

The date of the revolt of Bactria against the authority of the Seleucidae, who had inherited all the eastern parts of the empire of Alexander, cannot be accurately fixed. Justin,* however, states that it was contemporary with another revolt of one of the eastern provinces of the Seleucid empire, that of the Parthians under Arsaces; an event which took place in B.C. 248.† About that time, then, Diodotus, Satrap of Bactria, revolted against Antiochus II. of Syria, and succeeded in establishing his independence. He seems to have prepared his subjects for a change of masters by issuing coin bearing the types of Antiochus II. of Syria, but with his own portrait.‡ After his establishment in the kingdom he continued this issue unchanged, only substituting his own name, besides his portrait, for that of the Seleucid king. According to Justin,§ Diodotus soon died, and was succeeded by his son, also named Diodotus, who made a treaty of alliance with Arsaces, the first Parthian king. But it seems clear that all coins which have come down to us bearing the name of Diodotus were issued by one king. We must therefore either suppose that Justin is wrong and has duplicated a single monarch, or that the younger Diodotus continued the issue of his father's money unchanged, or, finally, that the elder Diodotus continued during his lifetime to issue money in the name of Antiochus of Syria, and that our coins with the name of Diodotus were issued by his son, who first ventured to introduce his own name and portrait on the coin. Between these alternatives we cannot venture to decide; in favour of the last, it may be observed that the portrait of Diodotus on his coins is that of a man of not more than middle age; the coins of flat fabric, and bearing an elderly portrait, being now considered forgeries.

We learn that Diodotus was superseded in the rule of Bactria by Euthydemus, a native of Magnesia, in Ionia, possibly a Satrap of some neighbouring province, who was in full power at the time when Antiochus the Great made his eastern expedition, in or about B.C. 208. The accurate pages of Polybius* give us a glimpse into his history which is very valuable. Euthydemus being defeated in battle by Antiochus, and unable to oppose him, appealed to his generosity, saying that he was born in Asia Minor, and was not one of those who had revolted against Antiochus II., but, on the contrary, had gained the kingdom after rooting out the descendants of those who had so revolted. He pointed out the grave danger that must arise if he were obliged to call in the aid of the Scythians, who were already hovering on the Chinese frontier of his dominions. Antiochus seems to have been open to conviction: finally, he agreed to acknowledge Euthydemus' independence; and, taking a fancy to Demetrius his son, promised him one of his own daughters in marriage.

* Hist. x. ad fin., xi. 34.

After making terms with Euthydemus, Antiochus advanced across the Paropamisus into India, and made a treaty with the Indian king, Sophagasenus, or Subhāgasena, who seems at that time to have been in full possession of the Kabul Valley, the Greek dominion stretching little, if at all, to the south of the Indian Caucasus. Thence Antiochus returned, through Arachosia and Drangiana, to Syria.

With the beginning of the second century B.C. we find great changes taking place in the Greek regions of Central Asia. On the death of Euthydemus, his son Demetrius succeeded; and we find, as contemporary and rival of the latter, the great Eucratides, whose career of chequered victory and defeat may be partly traced in historical records. At the same time the Greeks, perhaps in consequence of the constantly increasing pressure from the north of the nomadic tribes of Central Asia, made their way across the Indian Caucasus, and began to wrest from the native Indian princes the districts of Kabul and the Panjab, which had been left under native dominion by the Seleucid kings from Seleucus I. to Antiochus III., and which Diodotus does not seem to have attacked; for coins of Diodotus are not found south of the Indian Caucasus. On the other hand, those of Euthydemus are found as far south as Seistan, and as far east as the Panjab;* and the city of Sagala, in the neighbourhood of Lahore, bore the surname of Euthydemia. Thus the sudden extension of the Greek pale would seem to have been a feature of the later years of Euthydemus. But it appears, from the statements of ancient writers, that the actual conqueror was not Euthydemus but his son Demetrius, who was probably his colleague in the kingdom as well as his successor. Thus Justin† speaks of * Some were found in the Indus at Attok. See Cunningham, in Num. Chron., 1869, p. 137.

Demetrius as king of India, and Strabo* couples him with Menander as a chief agent of Greek conquest in India. What seems most likely is that Demetrius made considerable conquests during his father's lifetime.

We are, however, scarcely justified in saying, as does v. Gutschmid,† that "Demetrius himself marched down the course of the Indus, conquered Pattala and the kingdom of Saraostes (Surāshtra) and Sigerdis, probably the district of the commercial city Barygaza." The careless language of the passage of Strabo in which these places are mentioned as within the Greek pale seems only to imply that some of the Greek kings extended their conquests so far; and it is reasonable to suppose that the rule of Menander was extended farther to south and east than that of Demetrius; to Menander therefore the conquest of the Indus valley may be with more reason ascribed.

Not only did Euthydemus acquire, through his son's activity, territory in India, but he also probably ruled the widest district ever possessed by the Greeks to the north of the Paropamisus, from Margiana to Chinese Tartary. Even into the Celestial Empire the influence and the trade of the Greeks seems at this time to have penetrated. Of this a proof is furnished by a coin brought by Sir D. Forsyth from Kashgar,‡ bearing a Chinese legend and inscribed with the name and titles of a Greek king, possibly Hermaeus. After Euthydemus' death his dominions were broken up by the rivalry between Demetrius and Eucratides, as well as by the rise and usurpations of fresh kings of uncertain origin, such as the first Antimachus.

* Geog. xl. 11, 1. Most of Strabo's statements as to early Bactrian history are loose and incorrect. For instance, he speaks of the revolt of Arsaces as subsequent to the rise of Euthydemus.

† In Encycl. Brit., Persia, p. 590.

‡ Numism. Chron. 1879, p. 274. That this coin is of iron, is now, I am informed, denied.

Of Eucratides also the origin is obscure. We know, however, by a fortunate chance, the names of his father and mother. These are furnished to us by the remarkable coins* which bear on one side the head of Eucratides, and the inscription Βασιλεὺς Εὐκρατίδης; on the other the portraits of his father and mother, Heliocles and Laodice. The very collocation of the inscriptions which appear on the two sides of those coins, Βασιλεὺς Εὐκρατίδης — Ἡλιοκλέους καὶ Λαοδίκης, where we seem almost compelled to understand the word υἱός, shows that in them Eucratides intends to proclaim his parentage. Heliocles does not seem to have been a king at all, for his portrait wears no diadema, but Laodice's head does seem to be bound with the diadema, in the Greek East the invariable sign of royalty. And indeed her appearance on coins in such a connexion would scarcely be explicable unless she were of royal parentage. But we must remain in ignorance whose daughter she was. Von Sallet has proposed an entirely different interpretation of the coins in question. He thinks that they were issued by Eucratides, not in honour of his parents, but on the occasion of the marriage of his son Heliocles (who afterwards succeeded him) with a Laodice, whom Sallet conjectures to have been daughter of Demetrius by the daughter of Antiochus III., whom that monarch betrothed to Demetrius in the course of his Indian campaign. On this hypothesis some recent writers have tried to build further structures of theory. But it is unfitted to bear such a weight. In its favour is the one fact that the name Laodice was usual in (not peculiar to) the Seleucid dynasty of Syria. On the other side are reasons of more weight. The portraits of Heliocles and Laodice on the coins are of elderly, not young persons; and it is not easy to see how Sallet would interpret in the inscriptions which accompany the portraits the genitive case in the names of Heliocles and Laodice, unless he understands before them the word vires. One carefully compares the head of the elder Heliocles (pl. vi. with that of Eucratides (pl. v. 6), and that of the younger Helios (pl. vii. 1, 2), he must allow that it resembles Eucratides far more than his son; which may be best accounted for by supposing that the artist constructed the head of the elder Heliocles after his son on the analogy of that of his son Eucratides.

The wars between Demetrius and Eucratides are mentioned Justin,* but the statements of this writer be received with great caution, nor can we believe his assertions that the Indian conquests of Eucratides belong to the end of his reign, or that Demetrius ruled nearly the same time. For the coins seem to contradict them: coins of Demetrius come in almost all cases from Bactria of Eucratides are very commonly found in the Kabul Valley coins of Demetrius bear Greek legends only, with rare while the bronze coins of Eucratides are nearly all bearing indication alike of their later date than the money of Demetrius and that they were issued in India. We therefore must still retain the opinion that Demetrius ruled only during the early part of the reign of Eucratides in Bactria as well as in India, and Eucratides was for a great part of his reign lord of India as well as of Bactria and Arachosia. Eucratides founded the Eucratida in Bactria; Demetrius, Demetrius in Arachosia, Antydomas in India.

Cunningham places the commencement of the career of Eucratides

"Multa tamen Eucratides bella magna virtute gessit, quibus adtritum cum ciliocum Demetrii regis Indorum patere, cum eo militibus lx. milia hostes pedites cepissent. Quinto haque mense liberatus Indiam in potestatem venit. Unde cum se adparent a filio quem socium regni fecerat, in itinere interfecit." Justin, xii. 6.

Reign of Eucratides. about B.C. 190, and this date must be approximately right.* His reign began brilliantly, and was continued with chequered fortune; but the wide field over which his coins are found,† and their commonness, seems to testify to his great power. We may also remark his assumption of the title Βασιλεύς as a clear indication of extensive dominions, and the fact that his types and titles are copied by the kings of Parthia,‡ and by Timarchus, king of Babylon,§ as showing how widely his money circulated. But it appears that towards the end of his reign certain provinces|| were wrested from him by the Parthians, probably in the time of their great king Mithradates, who came to the throne about B.C. 170. The reign of Eucratides appears to have lasted until the times of two kings, who certainly imitate his money, Plato, whom the date on his unique and remarkable coin shows to have ruled in B.C. 165, and Timarchus of Babylon B.C. 162: Plato would seem to have been a mere ephemeral rival, of a revolted satrap of Eucratides.

We must assign to the period of the reign of Eucratides, that is, to the first half of the second century B.C., the coins of the kings Euthydemus II., Pantaleon, Agathocles, and Antimachus I. This assignment, which was first made by von Sallet, is on grounds of style quite incontestable. It is impossible, in view of the art

* There does not seem to be any conclusive evidence on the point. v. Sallet quotes the imitation of Eucratides' types by certain early Arsacid kings as a proof that Eucratides' reign began early; but the attribution of the early coins of the Arsacidae is a matter of dispute.

† According to Cunningham, they are found at Balkh, in Bokhara; Seistan, the Kabul Valley, &c., and a few in the Panjab.

‡ For instance, Arsaces VI., Mithradates I. See Gardner, The Parthian Coinage, p. 31. Other writers attribute these coins to others of the Arsacidae.

§ B. M. Cat. Seleucidæ, pl. xv. 2, p. 50.

|| Τῆς τε Ἀσσυρίων καὶ τῆς Συρίας ἀφίμνητο Εὐκρατίδης οἱ Παρθοίαι: Strabo xl. 11, ed. Kramer. The names seem corrupt, and have been variously amended.

and fabric of the coins of those kings, to give them, as most writers, and even Cunningham did, to the earliest days of Bactrian independence. And the evidence of style is confirmed by the consideration that as all these kings on the south side of the Paropamisus, they cannot be to an earlier period than that of the Indian conqueror Demetrius.

This new light is of the utmost importance in the case of the earlier Greek kings of India: it entirely destroys an hypothesis which was full of difficulties, and puts in its place one which is thoroughly intelligible and satisfactory.

The coins of the younger Euthydemus are certainly subsequent to those of Demetrius, whose types they borrow. There is therefore, no reasonable doubt that this king was either younger son of Euthydemus I, or else the son of Demetrius, grandson of Euthydemus I. As the coins of the younger Euthydemus are not by most writers distinguished from those of the elder, it is not possible to ascertain their find-spots, or to detect the locality of his reign; its date would seem to be about B.C. 180. From the rarity of his coins it may be judged that his reign was soon brought to an end.

Pantaleon and Agathocles strike with almost identical coins. They both adopt the metal nickel* for their coins, and they also in their legends the square Indian alphabet. They seem, therefore, to have been closely connected, either brothers or father and son. Coins of both are found in the Kabul Valley and the Panjab, and those of Agathocles as far south as Kandahar. Pantaleon seems from his portrait to have been the elder of the two, and the rarity of his coins shows his reign to have been ephemeral. Agathocles seems to have ruled more widely and longer, and he has left us in some of his coins valuable materials for the determination of points in his history.

Of the greatest importance is a series of coins,* which indeed we may rather term medals, of the weight of Attic tetradrachms, issued by Agathocles in commemoration of his predecessors in the Greek rule of Bactria. These medals reproduce alike the portraits of these predecessors, and, what is still more unusual, their coin-types, so that only by their style and their inscriptions do they differ from the ordinary coins of those monarchs. The inscriptions run thus:—

ΜΕΔΑΛΙΑΝΤΙΟΧΟΥ ΝΙΚΑΤΟΡΟΣ	ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΟΝΤΟΣ
ΑΓΑΘΟΚΛΕΟΥΣ ΔΙΚΑΙΟΥ
ΔΙΟΔΟΤΟΥ ΣΩΤΗΡΟΣ	"
ΕΥΘΥΔΗΜΟΥ ΘΕΟΥ	"

To these we must add the parallel coin of King Antimachus:

ΜΕΔΑΛΙΑΝΤΙΟΧΟΥ ΝΙΚΑΤΟΡΟΣ	ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΟΝΤΟΣ
	ΘΕΟΥ ΑΝΤΙΜΑΧΟΥ

I have elsewhere† discussed these medals, the true character of which v. Sallet was the first to establish. They prove that Pantaleon and Agathocles, like the younger Euthydemus, belonged to the faction of Euthydemus I. and Demetrius, and were presumably opposed to Eucratides. Agathocles traces his political pedigree through Euthydemus I., Diodotus, and an Antiochus,‡ to * Pl. iv. 1, 3, xxx. 5, 6.

‡ It is disputed which of the three first Antiochi of Syria is the Antiochus Nicator of these coins. None of them seems really to have borne the title: the first was Soter, the second Theos, the third Megas. In favour of Antiochus I., it may be urged that he was the only Antiochus who held undisputed sway in Bactria, and might well be regarded by the Eastern Greeks as full successor of Alexander the Great; also his father Seleucus was called Nicator. In favour of Antiochus II., we have the strong argument that the type of the seated Herakles which is repeated on the Bactrian coin is copied from coins of Syria given by Alexander the Great himself. Antimachus claims Diodotus as his predecessor. These facts seem to suggest, what is by no means improbable in itself, that Euthydemus II., Pantaleon, and Agathocles were all sons of Demetrius. And possibly, though this is more speculative, Antimachus, as to whose connections we have information, was the representative by descent or otherwise of the house of Diodotus.

The types of Antimachus' coins add one more to the few known facts of Greek-Indian history. They are, on silver coins, Poseidon holding trident and palm, and on the bronze, Victory standing on a ship. There is no mistaking the meaning of these types, which clearly allude to a naval victory won by the king. It might seem at first sight that this victory must have been won on the open sea. But Antimachus' rule never extended to the sea: his coins are found both on the north and the south of the Caucasus, but never south of the Panjab. We must therefore suppose that the naval victory was won on the Indus, or one of its great tributaries; and, indeed, it may easily be understood that the Greeks would place so large a river as the Indus under the sway of Poseidon.

Eucratides was succeeded by his son Heliocles. The coins of this king are found mostly in Bactria, but also in the Kabul Valley. He is, as Cunningham remarks, the last king who struck to the north of the Indian Caucasus. We may therefore be almost sure that in his reign the nomadic tribe conquered the whole country as far south as the Bamian Pass. The silver coins of Heliocles fall into two classes. The first class consists of coins of the Attic standard of weight, bearing Greek general consent to Antiochus II. In favour of Antiochus III., the only argument is a passage of Malala (p. 261), where the term Nicator seems to be applied to this king. But this passage is deprived of all weight by the numerous mistakes which it contains. The balance of evidence is greatly in favour of Antiochus I. or II.

legends only. The second class consists of coins of a different weight, which I call the Persian,* which bear bilingual inscriptions and a different portrait of the king. The theory is obvious that the first class was issued by the king while he ruled in Bactria, and the second class at a later period, when he was king only of a corner of India. And it is greatly in favour of this view that the coins of the Bactrian class were largely copied by the barbarous tribes of central Asia, just as the coins of Philip and Alexander were by the Gauls who invaded Macedon about B.C. 290, while those of the Indian class are closely like coins of subsequent Greek kings of the Kabul Valley and India.

Down to the reign of Heliocles, which must be assigned to about Successors of Heliocles. B.C. 160—120, we are able to trace with certainty, or little less than certainty, the order of succession of the Greek kings of India. But we now arrive on the verge of a period of uncertainty, where the data are very scanty. In fact, our task would become almost hopeless, were it not that the annals of Principal information from Chinese sources. China preserve a general outline of the history of Bactria and India in the account which they give of the wanderings of the nomad nations on the western borders of China, during the second and first centuries B.C. To identify the names of kings and of places as recorded by the Chinese with those which we find on the coins is no easy task, but it is a task which has been attempted, and with some measure of success in the opinion of those best qualified to judge.

The most recent authority who has examined the Chinese evidence Chinese account of the Yueh-chi. as to the migrations of the Yueh-chi, M. H. Specht,† thus sums it up:—The Yueh-chi were conquered in 201 and 165 B.C. by the Huns, and fled westward, subjugating the Ta-hia of Bactria, and fixing their seat to the north of the Oxus, where a Chinese ambassador found them in 126 B.C. After that they captured Lan-chi, the capital of the Ta-hia. A hundred years later, Kiu-tsiu-kio [Kadphises I.], ruler of the Kushans, one of the Yueh-chi tribes, conquered all the other tribes, invaded the kingdom of the Arsacidae,* seized Kabul and Ki-pin [Cophene], and formed a great kingdom. His son conquered India, and the empire founded lasted from the middle of the first to the end of the second century.

Who the Ta-hia may be is not clear: they have been identified with the Scythian tribe of the Dahae, but the Chinese description of them—"each town was governed by its magistrate, the population was weak and feared war,"—would not apply to any Scythic race but would very well apply to the native Bactrians under Greek dominion; and the date at which the Greeks were driven west of the Paropamisus, in the reign of Heliocles, would fall not far from B.C. 126.

In the Kabul Valley the Hellenic race held out for a century until Kadphises I. led the united tribes of Yueh-chi against the Greeks, and, after vanquishing them, ruled the country, at first in conjunction with the last king, Hermaeus, and finally in his place.

The Chinese authorities thus give us two dates of the utmost value for the reconstruction of the history of India and Bactria: the nomad tribes conquered Bactria (Heliocles) about B.C. 126, and India (Hermaeus) about B.C. 25. These dates both suit the numismatic evidence very well. Gen. Cunningham gives Hermaeus to a far earlier period than B.C. 25, assigning him indeed to as early a time as 138—120. But not only does this conflict with historical records, but it is also in collision with numismatic testimony. For Hermaeus was, as all writers agree, the last of the

* About B.C. 31, Phraates, with the help of a Scythian army, expelled Tiridates from the government of Parthia.

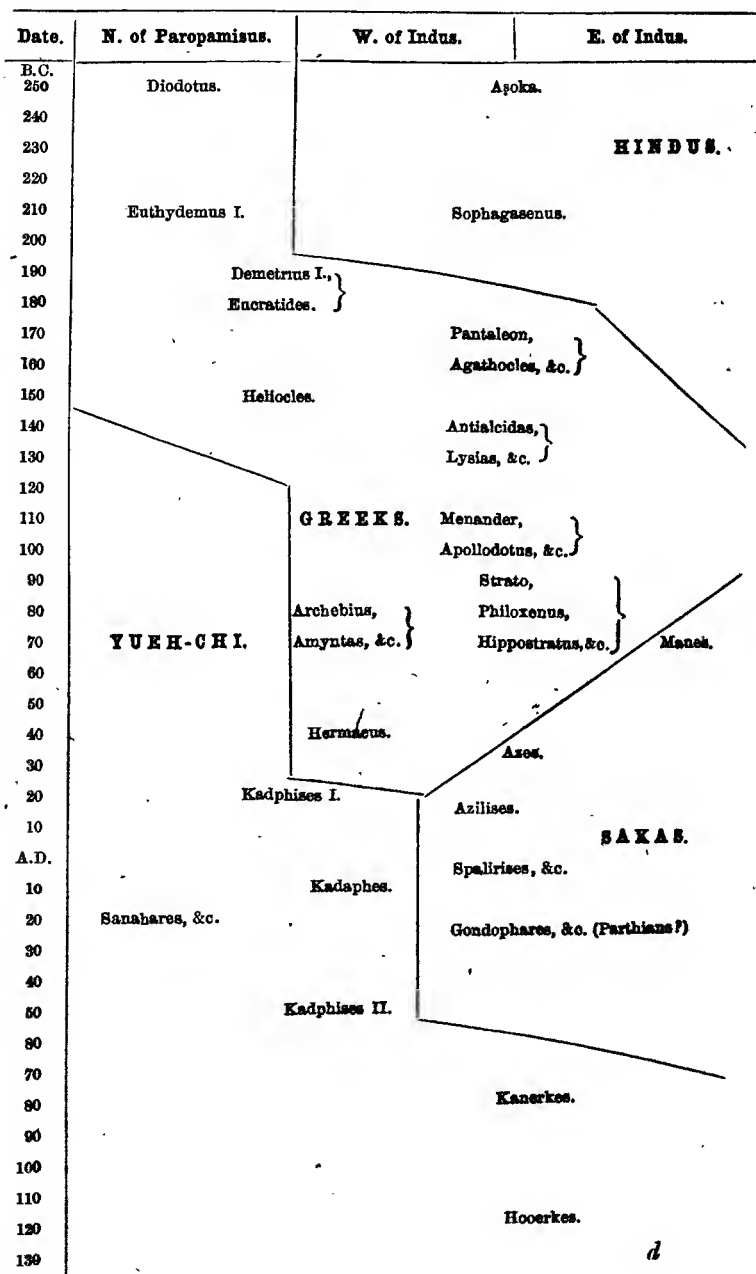

Greek kings of Kabul. We are therefore obliged to place between Helicæles and him the reigns of all the twenty Greek kings whose coins have come down to us. To cramp all these reigns into the space of thirty years, B.C. 160—180, is an unreasonable proceeding. Moreover the forms of letters on some of the coins, those of Zoilus, Nicias, and Hermaeus, entirely preclude us from assigning them to so early a period as B.C. 180; they must be quite a century later.

The Chinese writers also authorize the supposition that the Scythian race which wrought the ruin of the Greeks was that of the Yuch-chi, who have been identified with the Tochari of Strabo. And the coins, in this confirming Chinese testimony, show that the tribe of Yuch-chi to which Kadphises belonged was the tribe of Kassar, already mentioned on the last page.

This knowledge is valuable; but it leaves us in ignorance on many points. We are still unaware to what tribes belonged the barbarous rulers of India in this age who did not come in with Kadphises. Maues, Azes, and their successors, who established a empire in India, as we shall hereafter see, before the days of Hermaeus, do not appear to have been Yuch-chi; and we are quite in doubt as to the connexions of Gondophares and other rulers.

Before proceeding to speak more in detail of the various groups of kings, we will set forth in the form of a chart the general outlines of our historical and geographical knowledge in regard to

CHART TO SHOW EXTENT OF DOMINIONS AND DATES OF GREEK AND SCYTHIC KINGS.

Leaving out of account the predecessors of Heliocles, we know already of upwards of twenty kings and of two queens who ruled in the Kabul Valley and the Panjab after about B.C. 160, and before the Indo-Scythic conquest of those regions. The orderly arrangement of these rulers is a matter of the utmost difficulty and even of impossibility. The classification of General Cunningham is based on indications so slight that it cannot resist serious criticism: and indeed its validity depends in a great degree on his arrangement of the early kings, which must now be given up in consequence of the readjustment of Pantaleon and Agathocles. Von Sallet so entirely despairs of any reasonable arrangement that he adopts one which is merely alphabetical. All that has been attempted in the present catalogue is to group the kings roughly in something like chronological order, keeping similar types of coin as far as possible together. By means of the Index any king can easily be found, and that is the chief necessity.

It will however be well to set forth briefly what certain data we possess for the chronological and geographical assignment of the kings. We will begin with the chronological.

The only one of these later kings who strikes money on the Attic standard is Antialcidas, who must therefore be either a contemporary or an immediate successor of Heliocles. And as Antialcidas and Lysias strike some coins in common they also must be contemporaries. A common type of Antialcidas is the pilei of the Dioscuri, which seems to connect him with Eucratides; his portrait also resembles that of Heliocles: he would seem therefore not improbably to belong to the Eucratidian dynasty. The connexion of Lysias is obscure.

There are also a few restriking which help us in the assignment of dates to some of the Greek kings of India.

Heliocles restrikes some of the coins of Strato I,* and the name and types of Encratides are stamped on a piece of Antialcidas,† as well as on some coins which I have assigned to Apollodotus I;‡ but it has been doubted whether these coins of Encratides were really issued during his lifetime.

Types and legends of coins offer few indications.

Any attempt finally to arrange the kings in dynastic lists by means of the types and legends which they use is destined to failure. The kings did not inherit these things, but adopted them according to fancy or convenience. One or two instances will be sufficient to establish this. That Heliocles was son and successor of Eucratides is perhaps the most certain fact in Bactrian history. Yet he does not resemble Eucratides in his title (δίκαιος for μέγας), he does not wear the same helmet, nor use the same types. In the two last respects Demetrius differs from his father Euthydemus. On the other hand, Diodotus, who revolted against Antiochus II., retained the types of the Syrian king. These instances are sufficient to prove that identity of types between two kings is no proof of their relation to one another, nor is divergence of types any proof that they were not related. Still less can we draw any conclusions from the form of a helmet or the adoption of a title.

Perhaps the most suggestive approximation of types is that which appears when we compare the rare coins of Agathocleia, wife of Strato, with those of Euthydemus. They bear on the reverse the same type, Herakles seated, which is not usual in the Bactrian series. It is almost certain that Agathocleia must have been a king's daughter and heiress; otherwise, as we know from the coins of Greek kings, her name would scarcely have appeared on the coin. That she was descended from Euthydemus is therefore very likely. We have already seen that king Agathocles was probably son of Euthydemus; Agathocleia may well have been his grand-daughter, or otherwise related to him. But in this kind of argument there are obviously the greatest risks; and we will attempt it in no second instance.

* Strato also restrikes coins of Heliocles.

‡ Cunningham, in Num. Chron. 1869, p. 226.

A large find of coins of the kings from Heliocles to Hermaeus was discovered some years ago at Sonipat;* and no less than 703 specimens have been weighed by Gen. Cunningham, who has acutely suggested that the order of the reigns may be gathered by a consideration of the amount of weight lost in circulation by the coins of different kings, those kings whose coins are most worn being naturally supposed to be the earliest. The loss is as follows:—

✓ Heliocles, 5·43 gr.	Philoxenns, 3·77 gr.
Apollodotus, 4·57 gr.	Menander, 3·72 gr.
Strato, 4·56 gr.	Diomedes, 3·39 gr.
Antimachus II., 4·48 gr.	Amyntas, 3·30 gr.
Antialcidas, 4·10 gr.	Hermaeus, 3·20 gr.
Lysias, 3·73 gr.

In this calculation it is assumed that the normal standard for hemidrachms is 37 grains, and that all kings minted up to that standard. This is, of course, not certain; nevertheless, the results of the test so nearly agree with the testimony of style, that we can scarcely be wrong in regarding the above order as approximately correct; only Antialcidas and Lysias should not be placed so late.

Among all these kings, two only, Apollodotus and Menander, are known to us from other sources. Menander is identified with the Milinda of the Buddhist work * Num. Chron. 1872, p. 161.

"Milinda-prasna," which records not only that he was born at the sub-Caucasian Alexandria, but that he was a just and powerful ruler, and a convert to the Buddhist religion. Strabo* says that he was reported to have crossed the river Hypanis eastward and penetrated as far as the Isamus, but as we are ignorant where the Isamus was, this does not greatly add to our knowledge. Plutarch† records that as a ruler he was noted for justice; and that when he died many cities were anxious to possess his ashes—a curious tale, which is considered by Prinsep to indicate a Buddhist source. The extraordinary abundance and wide distribution of his silver coins is well known. They were current, with those of Apollodotus, at Barygaza, many years after his death,‡ and are still abundantly found over a wide region, including Kabul, Jalalabad, Peshawar, Mathura, and Rampur. They are not brought from Kandahar or Seistan. "From this evidence," says Cunningham,§ "it is certain that Menander could not have possessed any part of Arachosia or Drangiana, and that his dominions to the west of the Indus must have been confined to the Kabul Valley and Eastern Afghanistan."

The coins which bear the name of Apollodotus fall into two classes: these are distinguished in the Catalogue.

Apollodotus.

The second class are of later and poorer style; and on them the king usually bears the title of Philopator. General Cunningham says|| that the Philopator coins are found only in the Panjab and N.-W. India, while the others are found over a much wider area, including the "Upper Kabul Valley in the north, Kandahar and Roh in the west and east, and Sindh in the south." The evidence, on the whole, indicates that there were two kings of the name of Apollodotus, of whom the later, Philopator, was colleague of his father, the earlier, and his successor in some part of his dominions. And this probability will be raised almost to a certainty if we suppose that the restriking of Apollodotus' coins with the name of Eucratides took place in the life-time of the latter; since the coins which bear the legend Philopator cannot be brought within a considerable distance of the reign of Eucratides.

We have thus but slight indications, beside those of art and fabric, to help us in determining the dates of the kings from Heliocles to Hermaeus. Nor have we safer data for their geographical assignment. The find-spots of their coins have never been recorded with completeness or accuracy. And the monograms which have been supposed to contain the names of mints have not been satisfactorily read, in spite of the diligent efforts of General Cunningham, whose want of success* in the matter seems to prove that success is not possible, at least in the present state of knowledge on the subject. And the details of the types adopted by various kings help us no more in determining the locality of their rule than in assigning their line of descent.

We can, however, make a few rough divisions of territory. Heliocles and his predecessors minted, as we have seen, in Bactria, his successors only on the south of the Indian Caucasus. And further, it would seem that the Panjab and the Kabul Valley were frequently in different hands. Thus the coins of Archebius and Amyntas seem to be found in Kabul, and not to the east of the Indus; and those of Hermaeus are far commoner in the same district than in the Panjab. On the other hand, the coins of kings Philoxenus, Strato, and * Gen. Cunningham's readings have not been accepted by the best numismatists. Von Sallet remarks, "Such interpretations and experiments have too weak a basis to serve for historical investigations." See also the remarks of M. Chabouillet in the Revue Numism., 1867, p. 403.

Hippostratus are chiefly found to the east of Jalalabad. A more exact statement could only be made after many years' study on the spot.

The recorded find-spots of coins are however sufficient to give us an idea of the extent of the Greek kingdom in India. Cunningham states that coins of Apollodotus are found as far south as Kandahar and Sindh, and those of Menander as far east as Mathura on the Jamna. And there appear to be proofs in Sanskrit literature* that a Greek ruler (perhaps Menander) besieged Ayodhya and Pāṭali-putra (Oudh and Patna). But these expansions were temporary, and there is no doubt that the only districts which were really Hellenized were the Kabul Valley and the western Panjab.

Coins of Antialcidas, Apollodotus, Menander, Lysias, Antimachus II., Diomedes, Archebius, and Hermaeus, were found by Masson† in the course of a few years at Beghram; and since his time coins of Epander, Dionysius, Zoilus, Amyntas, and other kings have been found in the same region, if not on the same site. The kings mentioned, and probably others of Greek race, must all have reigned in the Kabul Valley.

With the Greek kings we have placed one of Indian name, Ranjabala. Ranjabala, whose coins resemble those of Strato, and show him to have been nearly contemporary with that king. He may have been a satrap of Strato, who asserted his independence. His coins have been found in the eastern Panjab and at Mathura‡ in company with some of Strato.

* Cunningham, in Num. Chron. 1870, p. 224.

† See his important list of coins found at Beghram, in the Journ. As. Soc. Bengal, 1836, p. 537.

‡ Cunningham, J. A. S. B. 1854, p. 691. In this paper it is suggested that Ranjabala may be identical with Rājapāla, a king of the lunar race of Dehli, and that Zeionises may be Jivana Rāja of the same dynasty. The reasons against these identifications are, however, very strong.

The barbarous kings who make their appearance in India after the destruction of the Greek kingdoms present even greater difficulties of arrangement than do the Greek kings themselves. Between the eastern expedition of Antiochus III., in B.C. 208, and the era of Kanerkes, which may be taken as fixed* to A.D. 78, there is no absolutely fixed point, and we are reduced to arguments of mere probability.

Of all the coins of the barbarous rulers, those of Maues are the earliest in style. Von Sallet remarks that the copper coins of this king are like those of Demetrius and Apollodotus, and belong to a period not much later than that of those kings. In the forms of Greek letters, and the style of art, his coins are superior not only to those of Hermaeus, but also to those of kings such as Zoilus and Nicias. It is impossible to place King Maues at a later date than the middle of the first century B.C. And it is an interesting fact, vouched for by Cunningham, that his coins are found in the Panjab only, especially the N.W. part of it, and not in Afghanistan. We must suppose that he ruled over some Scythic-invaders, who had entered India not through the Kabul Valley, but through Kashmir or Nepal, while the country to the west of Peshawar was ruled by contemporary Greek kings. At present the Passes between Kashmir and Yarkand are but little used, but it is stated that the Karakoram Pass is open all the year round; and the trade between India and Yarkand by that route has of late years greatly increased. And we know that in old times Kashgar was far more thickly peopled than at present. It is also a matter of history that Nepal has more than once been invaded by Chinese armies. It would appear likely that at the time of the conquest of Bactria by the

Yueh-chi, as to which something has been said already, about B.C. 130, some tribe of that race or some other Scythic horde passed southward through Kashmir or Nepal; and after imbibing something of Greek civilization, and learning the Greek language, succeeded during the decline of the Greek power after Menander in establishing a kingdom to the east of the Indus, of which Maues was the first ruler.

Azes was, according to general consent, the successor of Maues.

Von Sallet suggests that he was his son, and reads Azes, Azilises. on coins of Azes, with hesitation, the legend YMAVO, which may stand for υἱὸς Μαύου. Azes was certainly of later date than Manes, as the forms of his inscriptions and the art of his coins testify. His money also is not found to the west of Jalalabad; it is therefore likely that he did not greatly extend the dominions of Maues, though the extraordinary number of his coins testifies to his wealth and power. Azes strikes in conjunction with Aspavarma, Azilises, Vonones, and Spalirises, and Vonones in conjunction with Spalahores and Spalagadames. This shows that Azes, Azilises, Vonones, and the Spalirises group, of whom we shall speak presently, all belong to one time and to a single group of kings. But Vonones and Spalirises seem, from the find-spots of their coins, certainly to have reigned in Kabul: they may have ruled there and been tributary to Azes; but how they coexisted with the latest Greek kings and the invaders from Bactria, the kings of the Kadphises line, we are unable to determine.

Of the relations between themselves of the kings composing this
Vonones, group the legends of their coins enable us to judge
Spalirises,
&c. in some measure:—

1. Βασιλέως βασιλέων μεγάλου Ἀζου = name and titles of the Strategos Aspavarma.

2. Βασιλέως βασιλέων, μεγάλου Ἀζου = Βασιλέως βασιλέων μεγάλου Ἀζιλίσου.*
3. Βασιλέως βασιλέων μεγάλου Ὀνώνου = Βασιλέως ἀδελφου δικαίου Σπαλαόρου.
4. Βασιλέως βασιλέων μεγάλου Ὀνώνου = Σπαλαόρου υἱοῦ δικαίου Σπαλαγαδάμου.
5. Βασιλέως βασιλέων μεγάλου Σπαλιρίσου = Βασιλέως μεγάλου Σπαλιρίσου.
6. Βασιλέως μεγάλου Σπαλιρίσου = Βασιλέως μεγάλου Ἀζου.†
7. Βασιλέως ἀδελφου Σπαλιρίσου = Βασιλέως ἀδελφου δικαίου Σπαλιρίσου.
8. Σπαλύριος δικαίου ἀδελφου τοῦ βασιλέως = Σπαλαόρου υἱοῦ δικαίου Σπαλαγαδάμου.
9. Vonones and Azes (undescribed coin, said to be in Gen. Cunningham's possession).

The evidence afforded by these legends is valuable, but not so decisive as it might at first sight appear, and capable of being variously construed. Some points, however, are clear. Four kings of the set assume the title King of Kings (Azes, Azilises, Vonones and Spalirises), but they do not do so in succession; Azes seems content to share the title in a friendly way with Azilises and Spalirises, at any rate.†. Spalirises was brother of a king, but of which king does not appear. Spalahores is also brother of a king, and he and his son Spalagadames strike in conjunction with Vonones. Spalyris is another brother, and at one time Spalagadames strikes in conjunction with him. As close alliances of this kind scarcely occurred in antiquity, except between members of one family, we may regard it as probable, if not certain, that all the kings of the group were related one to the other. In that case it is likely that Azilises, Vonones, Spalirises, Spalahores, and Spalyris were all sons of Azes, and Spalagadames his grandson. Aspavarma was a mere general or satrap of Azes—perhaps, as his name seems to show, of Hindu descent. The kingdom of Maues lasted in the hands of these rulers from before the middle of the first century B.C. at least until A.D. 20 or 30, spreading with time over a larger and larger area. It must have been put down by the growing power of the kings of the Kushan tribe, perhaps by Kadphises II.

* These reverse titles are really written in Indian. I give, for convenience, the Greek equivalents.

† This is sufficient proof that the assumption of the title Βασιλεὺς βασιλέων, 'Maharāja adhirāja', does not imply a claim to general supremacy.

We have coins of several other kings in India of the same period, who do not appear to have been connected with Parthian names. either the dynasty of Kadphises or that of Azes. The only tie which connects them together is the Parthian character of their names, and in most cases of their coin-types. Some both in name and portrait, Pacores and Arsaces, for instance, are thoroughly Parthian. It is to be observed that under Mithradates and his warlike successors the Parthians had extended their empire into Bactria, and driven back the invading Scythians. Some scions of the royal Arsacid stock, or mere Parthian noblemen, may have gained a footing in India and maintained themselves in opposition to the Scythic kings.

The most important king of the Parthian class is Gondophares, with whom goes Abdagases, who on his coins calls himself the nephew of Gondophares. The names of these rulers fortunately occur in the legends dating from the third century A.D., which record the visit of S. Thomas to India,* containing indeed much that is untrustworthy, but also a basis of fact. S. Thomas is represented as converting Gundaphorus, his brother Gad, possibly the Orthagnes mentioned below, and his sister's son Labdanus, which last name seems to be a corruption of Abdagases. Where these rulers lived is not very clear. The legend, however, may furnish some ground for assigning them to the period of S. Thomas, that is, the first century A.D. More trustworthy than an early Christian legend should be the inscription at Takht-i-Bahi, if it could be read with certainty. Professor Dowson renders thus: * "In the 26th year of the great king Gondophares, on the third day of the month Vaiṣākha, (year) one hundred of the Samvatsara." Unfortunately, doubt hangs alike over the reading of name and date, nor can the era be identified, for Samvatsara means merely era. All that we can be sure of is that Gondophares did not reign in the hundredth year of the Śaka era, by which Kanerkes and his successors (see p. li) date their inscriptions; for the style of his coins forbids us to place them as late as A.D. 178. If the name of the king be rightly read it will prove that Gondophares reigned in the neighbourhood of Peshawar; but even this is not certain.

* Cunningham, in Journ. As. Soc. Bengal, vol. xxiii. Cf. also Gutschmid, Rhein. Mus. 1864, p. 161, and von Sallet in Zeitschr. f. Num., 1880, p. 296. Gutschmid shows that Gaspard, one of the three kings of the Christian legend, is identical with Gondophares.

A silver coin of Gondophares discovered by v. Sallet, and figured in our plate xxxiii. 2, may perhaps give us a clue to his date. It is of the types of Arsacid silver coins, and especially reminds us of a coin of Mithradates II. (B.C. 90 or 80), which has similar types on both sides†—on one the head of the king; on the other the king seated, holding an eagle, crowned by a City, who stands behind him. And this last mentioned type seems not to recur in the Arsacid coinage, so that it would seem likely that Gondophares actually copied it from the coinage of Mithradates. In the inscription of Gondophares' coin we find the epithet ἀντοκρατόρ, which is found on the money of only two * Journ. R. As. Soc., 1875, p. 379.

Arsacid kings—Sinatroces, B.C. 76 to 69, and Phraates IV., A.D. 8—11. This particular coin of Gondophares then would seem to have been struck not later than the middle of the first century A.D. The period mentioned would suit the other coins of Gondophares.

That Orthagnes was a brother of Gondophares rests on a reading of his coins proposed by Gen. Cunningham. The supposition has nothing improbable in it; the type of Victory which appears on his coins being also found on those of Gondophares and Abdagases. If it be well founded, it will clearly prove the Parthian origin of the dynasty of Gondophares, Orthagnes connecting him with other Indian kings of Parthian type such as Pacores,* Arsaces θεός and Arsaces δίκαιος. All these rulers must have been contemporary with the great time of the Parthian empire. To the same period will be assigned also Zeionises, who on his coins calls himself by the modest title of Satrap.

With regard to the seat of the power of these Indo-Parthian kings we have a little information. The coins of Orthagnes are said by Gen. Cunningham to come from Seistan and Kandahar, and those of Abdagases (with legend Sasasa) from Western Panjab. These facts seem to point to an extensive dominion, and confirm the testimony of the anonymous Egyptian merchant,† who informs us of the existence of a Parthian realm in the neighbourhood of the mouth of the Indus, in the reign of Vespasian.

Sanabares.

British Museum (pl. xxiii. 10), have been given by v. Sallet to about the year A.D. 80, and have been compared as contemporary with money of the Arsacid king Vologeses III.\* of that period. But the portrait of Sanabares, though it resembles that of Vologeses, is still more like that of Mithradates II., the helmet having cheek-pieces like the helmet of the latter monarch, while the style of work is very superior to anything known in Parthia in the days of Vologeses. Mr. Thomas had read on the Museum specimen the date  $\Gamma\text{IT}$ , which he interpreted as implying the 313th year of the Seleucid, and first of the Christian era. But this reading is now disputed,† and cannot be insisted on. But if it is given up we should be still inclined to place Sanabares at about the beginning of the Christian era. Sanabares does not use Indian characters in his legends, but either Greek or Pehlvi, and four of the five coins of his in the British Museum came from Persia. It is therefore likely that this king ruled exclusively or principally to the north of the Indian Caucasus.

On referring to the coins of the Arsacidae, we find that in that series the square  $\square$  and  $\sqcap$  come in some twenty years B.C. On the other hand, the square  $\sqcup$  ‡ does not take the place of  $\Omega$  until 8 A.D. It is quite in keeping with these facts that Manes uses round letters only; Azes, Azilises, Spalirises and their contemporaries, use the square  $\square$  with  $\Omega$ ; Gondophares and Abdagases use the forms  $\square$  and  $\sqcup$ . We have thus a series of kings covering the period B.C. 50 to A.D. 50. The date of Pacores and Arsaces is not easy to fix, but must fall during this period. It is, however, noteworthy, as von Sallet points out, that the coin of Arsaces θεός bears precisely the same types as one of Maues.

† On other specimens the letters take the form  $\text{TIT}$  &c. They may have no meaning.

‡ In the text this form is used in the legend of King Nicias, who certainly reigned earlier than 8 A.D. But on the actual coins of that king the letter is rounder, and of earlier type.

The nameless king, who calls himself merely Soter Megas, naturally gives us no clue in his inscription to decide his affinities. Some of his coins are in type and style closely like those of Abdagases; and as he also makes use of the form Ω, he must be of about the same period as that king, A.D. 30-50. His coins are found in great numbers in the Kabul Valley. He may possibly have been a member of the Kadphises dynasty.

After the kings of Parthian character we must mention some others whose types are not dissimilar, yet who appear to be of Scythian race. Among these the most important is Heraüs and the Sakas, whose remarkable coin (pl. xxiv. 7) throws some light over the history of this troubled time. Of late the reading of the legend Ῥαυνοῦντος Ἡράου Σάκα κορράνου has been disputed, but without solid reason, except as regards the last word. This may with equal exactness and probability be read κορράνου; but even if we do thus read it, the presence of the Ῥαυνοῦντος, which is quite undisputed, proves that unusual Greek words may be expected at this time, and suggests that κορράνου may be a corruption of κορράνου. The reading ΗΡΑΟΥ is allowed by Mr. Thomas; but he now disputes the important word Saka, reading instead of it the unintelligible words ΣΑΝ ΑΒ.* But we must point out that on the Brit. Mus. coin the third letter of the word is not formed like the N's, of which there are four in the inscription, but like a retrograde M, which is on late Parthian and Bactrian coins an ordinary shape of K: see pls. xxv, vi. passim. Thus there seems to be at present no sufficient reason for doubting that Heraüs calls himself a Saka king; and we thus gain a confirmation of the statement of ancient historians, that that race was prominent in the conquest of India from the Greeks. But Heraüs probably ruled, like other kings of the class, to the north of the Caucasus.

Similar in type of head to Heraüs is Hyrcodes, one of whose ordinary types, that of the half-horse, is taken from silver coins of the early Antiochi of Syria, which circulated in Bactria. Wilson states that most of his coins come from the Bactrian side of the Caucasus; Mr. Thomas,* that they belong to Kerman. At page 119 of the Catalogue will be found a few coins of the same class which seem to bear the names of other kings; but these legends may be mere blundered attempts to produce some more intelligible name.

Finally, we have to speak of a well-defined group of kings which takes its rise with that Kozulo Kadphises who appears on coins as colleague and successor of Hermaeus. His date must be the last quarter of the first century B.C.

We do not know to what branch of the widely extended race of Sakas, or nomads, Maues and his successors belonged. But we have reason to think that the group at present discussed were kings of the Yueh-chi, who are identified by Cunningham with the Tochari, and that they belonged to the Kushan branch of that tribe.

We have already seen how Kadphises led the Yueh-chi, about B.C. 25, southward across the Paropamisus and conquered Hermaeus, whom he reduced to a state of vassalage. Under his successors the dominions of the Yueh-chi went on increasing. Probably he was succeeded by the king who bears the very similar name of Kozola

* On a coin probably similar to our pl. xxiv. 13, Mr. Thomas reads Guäth in Pehlvi characters (Sassanian Inscriptions, p. 10). Our coin is not sufficiently complete for me to be sure of the reading.

to that of Augustus that it seems all but certain he must have reigned at the very beginning of Christian era. That he succeeded the first Kadphises is probable, and it is equally probable that he was succeeded by a second, who on his coins calls himself Ooemo Kadphises, whose reign brings us down to the accession of Kanerkas, and thus have a succession of princes of the same or a name extending over 100 years, and it is hard to believe that they do not represent a dynasty which reigned in the Kabul Valley.

a satrap called Limko Kusuluko dates from the 4th year of the great king Moga. It seems not that the satrap in question may be Kosob Kadaphes, and it is still more probable that the great king Moga is Maues, who probably reigned at the very beginning of the Christian era, may well be placed seventy-eight years later than the access of Maues, which must be placed not so late as the middle of the 1st century B.C. But of course it is all but impossible that Maues should have himself reigned seventy-eight years. The reference must not be to the year of his reign, but to an era established by him.

The evidence derived from the style and epigraphy of coins to show that Kadphises I. and Kadaphes I. are a part of N.W. India. When Kadphises came as an invader from the north, he found Hermias ruling in the Kabul Valley, and reduced him to a state of dependence.

Some time after he was probably ruler of the Punjab; and perhaps of the later Greek rulers, such as Hippostratus, still held rule in the lower India. When Hermias died no Greek succeeded him, but Kadphises took his place. Kadaphes, or the nameless which have succeeded Kadphises: their contemporaries must have been Kanishes, Spalinses and Gondophares. That the coins of Gondophares and of the nameless king are alike found in abundance at Begram, while those of Kadphises are not abundant, seems to show that the did not rapidly extend their dominion in India, but had formidable rivals in the descendants of Azes. Only one of the second Kadphises did the power of the invaders altogether predominant. It appears that under him and of these kings was a matter of uncertainty until the conjecture of Mr. Fergusson* as to the date of the Sassanid coins was accepted by most European scholars, and in its favour is so overwhelming, that there is to join them; in fact, V. Ball and Mr. Fergusson's paper assigned Kanishka to the middle of the theory proposed in that paper, evidence only. The new theory is that the date not of the destruction of the Sassanid but of the establishment of their empire in India and it is fixed to A.D. 78. The dates of Mathura and the coins are as follows (Thapar, Ancient Indian History, p. 45, p. 16) :—

King	Saka Year	Year A.D.
Kanerkas	9, 11, 18, 26	82—106
Hoterkes	33, 39, 47, 48, 51	111
Vasu Deva	44, 63, 67, 68	12—

The evidence of finds confirms this assignment, for at Abin Posh near Jalalabad, Mr. Simpson found the following gold coins :—

10 coins of Kanerkas, 6 of Kadphises, 1 of Domitian, 1 of Trajan, 1

The reigns of the Roman imperial persons cover the A.D. 81-136; and this proves that the deposit cannot be buried until about A.D. 130, probably in the reign of H.

It is true that in the Manikyala tope there were found at Kanerkas some worn consular denarii which belong to before Augustus, but it is more than probable that they were not buried till a long time after their issue.

It seems to be universally allowed that the Kanerkas and Hoc of the coins are the Kanishka and Huvishka of inscriptions; these were successive kings of the Kabul Valley in and appears to have reigned for no less a period than fifty-four years. Indeed, if one inscription be rightly read, he sometimes dates from the 5 of the era, * which will give to his reign the impossible length of 94 years. Prof. Dawson therefore suggests that Vasu Deva may have been the name given by their Indian subjects to kings of the Saka dynasty. In favour of this view it may be remarked that the words Vasu Deva occur in Sanskrit letters on coins of various kinds and classes; and the supposed Greek equivalent ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ occurs only on Indo-Scythic coins of semi-barbarous fabric.

But the Vasu Deva of the inscription is supposed to correspond to the Kushan's second mysterious personage. His overland is the

The coins of Visu Deva are succeeded by a large variety of copies, some of fairly good style, others of barbarous work, neither class being intelligible legends. Some of these, in copper, were usually given to an imaginary king Oor Kerooro, such being their legend.

Van Sallet has, however, conjectured that as there are no gold coins the legend Ooer Kenorano, and no copper bearing the legend te Korano, the copper coins above mentioned must have been minted by king Hooerkes. This conjecture is strongly confirmed by the Museum series of coins† in all respects similar to the above reading Ooer Kenorano but reading clearly Ooerke Korano.

In fact the difference between the two legends is almost evanescent, the one taking the place of K in the other; however, in versions of this class these two letters are constantly coins which repeat barbarously the legends and types of the Sassanids. They are of thin fabric and cup-like shape, like those of Byzantium of the ninth and subsequent centuries. They must be earlier than that period, and are perhaps the concave coins of the class struck at Persopolis after Sassanid supremacy.

The whole class of Indo-Scythic gold coins appears as a remarkable phenomenon amid the coins of India, especially as coins are entirely wanting in the Greek-Indian issues after that of Eucratides. The line of descent of the new issue must be not through the gold money of Alexander, which perhaps circulated in southern Asia, but through the Roman aurei first issued in abundance by Augustus, and which at the beginning of the Christian era made their way into India, where they have been found in conjunction with coins of Kadirphana and so forth. In weight the Indo-Scythic coins nearly correspond to the

II. INSCRIPTIONS.

The inscriptions on the coins contained in this volume are of the following kinds:—

(1) Greek language in Greek characters. On the coins of early kings, from Diodotus to Demetrius, Greek is only employed. After that time we usually find Greek on one side of the coin only. It is, however, quite evident that the Greek letters and the Greek language were generally understood in northern India and in Kabul as late as the second century of our era. This fact, clearly established by the testimony of coins, confirms the otherwise not trustworthy testimony of Ptolemy who represents that Apollonius of Tyana, when he visited India, had no difficulty in making himself generally understood by the Greeks. In the Hindu revival under the Guptas the Greek was probably swept away with other traces of Greek. Notable is the use by some of the later rulers of poetical words like empires, republics and deluges.

(2) Indian language in native characters. These last are of two sorts. The square letters of the so-called Indian alphabet were used by Pantaleon and Agathocles only; the these characters, called Arian Pali, are used by all the other nations to the latest times. In the case of the edicts of Asoka, Arian characters are used only in the Kabul Valley, and the in characters elsewhere; and this fact shows, what is proved in other ways, how completely the Greek and Scythian power penetrated to the Kabul Valley.

letters used on the coins, after careful comparison of the tables drawn up by Gen. Cunningham (see p. lxx). All the table have been cut upon types, so that printing in the will in future be comparatively easy. With the square characters I have not concerned myself, as they occur only

(8) Scythic language in Greek characters. These are found on coins of the late kings of Persia, such as PAO NANO KOZOV and others, especially the names of deities as those words so far as at present identified, are of non-borrowed from the languages of India, Persia, and Greece only bearing the Scythian stamp in their termination or modifications of the forms of words.

Lists of Greek, Scythic and Indian words will be found in Index of Inscriptions, and renderings of the last inscription table at p. lxxii.

III.—MONOGRAMS.

In the coins of all periods is a prodigious number of monograms and detached letters, sometimes Greek and sometimes of the Asian Pali class. If these could be read and there can be no doubt that they would afford us a great deal of information. But they present the greatest difficulties. Gen. Cunningham has well remarked, in regard to the Greek monograms, that they would be of little use, as they are so mixed up with the other characters, that they are almost impossible to decipher. But when the writer goes further, and says that they are so mixed up with the other characters, that they are almost impossible to decipher, he is not far from the truth. But when the writer goes further, and says that they are so mixed up with the other characters, that they are almost impossible to decipher, he is not far from the truth. ## INTRODUCTION.

probability that many of the Greek monograms may stand for the names of mints, we must stop short at that point. Nor does there seem any probability that we shall advance further, until the find-spots of Bactrian and Indian coins are far more exactly recorded than they have hitherto been. The monograms and letters of the Pali alphabet do not recur in the same way as the Greek, but vary far more; and it does not seem probable that they stand for mints. They may stand for the names of magistrates, for the date or number of the issue, or they may have been used for some other purpose which has not yet been guessed. Perhaps, in these circumstances, it may seem superfluous to record them, as has been done in this Catalogue; but it is impossible to be sure that valuable information will not some day be extracted from them.

IV. TYPES.

The types which appear on the coins described in the present volume are most interesting from the point of view of art and mythology; but it is to be regretted that they furnish us with little historical information. We have already noted the difficulty of trying to determine the genealogy or the dominions of kings by means of the types of their coins; and the same is scarcely less degree, in regard to the kings of India. It is a remarkable fact that throughout the period treated there seem to have been in N.-W. India artists signing original types for coins, so that the necessity of using foreign coins, which gives valuable material for study, does not seem to have arisen.

Not only by Greek kings we find great variety, and they open to us quite a new chapter of Greek art, affording fresh proof of the remarkable originality of the artists of the Hellenistic age. In regard to their style, we may note two points :—(1) The extraordinary realism of their portraiture. The portraits of Demetrius (pl. ii. 9), of Antimachus (v. 1), and of Eucratides (v. 7), are among the most remarkable which have come down to us from antiquity, and the effect of them is heightened in each case by the introduction of a peculiar and strongly-characteristic head-dress, which is rendered with scrupulous exactness of detail. (2) The decidedly Praxitelean character of the full-length figures of deities on the reverses. The figures of Herakles (pl. ii. 9, iii. 3), of Zeus (iv. 4, vii. 2), of Poseidon (v. 1), of Apollo (v. 4, ix. 10), are all in their attitudes characteristic of the school of Praxiteles. The types of Greek deities which we find are sometimes more distinctive than the style in which they are rendered. Thus, on coins of Demetrius, Artemis is sometimes radiate (pl. iii. 1), on coins of Agathocles (iv. 4) Zeus bears in his hand the three-headed Hekate, Herakles crowns himself with a wreath, Pallas appears in short skirts, and many other such strange forms of Greek deities appear.

To search out the reasons of these variations of type, reasons to be found probably in many instances in the influence of local Indian or Persian legend or belief, would be a very attractive task, and not hopeless, considering the data furnished us by the legends of the gold Indo-Scythic coins, as to which we shall presently have to speak.

The earliest of the clearly Indian types to make its appearance is Semi-Hellenic types. a dancing-girl, wearing long hanging earrings and oriental trousers, on the money of Pantaleon (iii. 9) and Agathocles (iv. 9). As we come to a later period, non-Hellenic types, or types in which there is a non-Hellenic element, gradually make their way on the coins. On coins of Philoxenus (xiii. 9) and Telephus (xxxii. 7) we find a radiate figure of a sun-god standing, holding a long sceptre. On those of Amyntas (xiv. 11) and Hermaeus (xv. 8) we find the head of a deity wearing Phrygian cap, whence issue rays. But when we reach the issues of King Maues (pls. xvi., xvii.), we find a wealth of most remarkable and original barbaro-Hellenic figures; a figure resembling Tyche (xvi. 3), holding in one hand a patera, in the other a wheel, who seems to be the original of the still more outlandish figure of Azes' coins (xviii. 10, 11); a radiate Artemis, with veil flying round her head (xvi. 4); a draped goddess, bearing a crescent on her head, and standing between two stars; and several others. Still more original is the type (xvi. 9), where a seated Zens grasps in his extended hand, not, as usual, a Victory (vii. 9) or a thunderbolt (vii. 5), but a being who seems an impersonation of the thunderbolt, and stands in the midst of it; as well as the type (xvii. 2) where a nymph, perhaps a Maenad, stands grasping two stems of vine. Maues' successors, Azes and Azilises, use types of the same class. A careful consideration of these facts will convince us that by some means or other Maues and his race secured the services of artists who had been instructed by Greeks, but were not restricted by Greek traditions. In fact, in these coins we have the sole remaining relics of an interesting school of art, one of many which existed in Asia in the first century B.C., and which have passed away almost without leaving any memorial. It would further seem that kings, who were the patrons of art, and understood the Greek language, must have been considerably softened and refined by contact with civilized neighbours.

The first of Indian deities to claim a place on the coins is Siva, who seems to make his appearance on the coins of Hindu types. Gondophares (pl. xxii. 8, 9), though it must be confessed that this figure may with equal plausibility be called a Poseidon, for the characteristic marks of Siva are absent. But on coins of Kadphises II. the bull, which appears beside the deity, sufficiently proves him to be Śiva; and on the money of Kanerkes and his successor he appears in more and more native form, four-armed, and bearing the numerous symbols associated with him in local belief. It is probable that the goddess who appears on the coins of Azes as standing on a lotus, and holding a flower (xix. 5), is either Pārvatī, the dread wife of Śiva, or Lakshmī, the goddess of fortune: the supposed lion, which seems on the coin to lie under her left elbow, may be after all only a lump of oxide. These, and the dancer on the coins of Pantaleon and Agathocles, are the only strictly Hindu types to be found on coins before the time of the great Yueh-chi dynasty, when other deities come in, as will be seen by the list given below.

To speak of Parthian types on coins at all may seem a misnomer, since there are no original Parthian types in existence, if we except representations of the king himself: in these matters the Parthians were imitators of the Greeks. But there are, notwithstanding, certain types of deities, and a certain style of art, which we learn to associate with the coins of Parthia; and when we can trace these on coins issued in India, a presumption arises that the king who issued them was of Parthian stock. For example, the portraits of Parthian kings, bearded, and wearing the diadema, have quite a distinct aspect; and we find this aspect in the portraits of Gondophares, Pacores, Orthagnes, and Sanabares. The type which represents a City crowning the king, which occurs on the money of Phraates IV. and subsequent kings of Parthia, is used by Zeionises (pl. xxiii. 4); and Nike, who is continually present on Parthian coins, is quite a feature also on our pl. xxiii., which contains coins of the kings of this group. Indeed, some of their coins, such as xxiii. 10 and 11, are altogether of Parthian type.

In view of their types, the gold coins of the conquering Yueh-chi

kings are of surpassing interest. The obverse presents us with a figure of the king clad in helmet and armour, which are closely like those borne by the first Arsaces of Parthia on his coins. The reverses are extremely varied, and present us with a multitude of types borrowed from several different mythologies. Had these coins been anepigraphons, their interpretation would have baffled all ingenuity; but fortunately the names of the various deities represented are written beside them in Greek characters, only somewhat disguised by being crushed into Scythian forms. On these types two important papers have been published, one by Mr. Thomas* and one by Dr. Hoffmann.† Though the present writer does not pretend to the linguistic knowledge of either of these scholars, he ventures to discuss their results from the numismatic point of view and that of comparative archaeology.

On these gold coins the following types appear:—

(a.) GREEK AND SEMI-GREEK DEITIES.

Inscriptions.

ΗΑΙΟC

Radiate sun-god, holds sceptre.

CAAHNH

Male moon-deity, holds sceptre.

NANAIA

Female deity holding sceptre, which ends in the fore-part of a horse.

These types occur in the series of coins issued by king Kanerkes with Greek legends only. The names of the deities are given in Greek, not Scythic. Nevertheless, in the types there are clear signs of barbarism. The figure of Helios is identical with that on bilingual coins inscribed with the name of Mioro, and the figure of Nanaia with that on the coins inscribed NANA; while the type of 'Salene' is borrowed from the coins inscribed MAO, and is male instead of female. Nanaia, though a deity of Persian origin,* was clearly regarded by the die-cutter as Greek, perhaps as identical with Artemis, but there is much that is oriental in her figure.

NANA,
NANA PAO }
[οΔΙΙο]

Female deity holding sceptre, as above; over her forehead, crescent.

The PAO is evidently only a suffix. The crescent of course indicates a lunar deity. NANO and OKPO are combined on a coin published by Prokesch-Osten. Arch. Zeit. 1849, pl. x. 8.

HPAKIAO
HPO

Herakles; holds club and apple.

Artemis clad in long chiton; holds bow and arrow.

The type is unmistakable, but the legend is puzzling. Mr. Thomas reads it ZEPO 'Ceres' (?), but that brings us no nearer to Artemis. I venture to suggest that the word MEIPO (see p. lxiii) is intended, for we find in other instances that inappropriate legend sometimes accompanying types which were, as we may conjecture, unintelligible to the die-cutter.

PAO PHOPO

War-god, standing; holds spear and shield.

The word PAO, evidently meaning king or royal, may be detached from the legend. The remainder, PHOPO, cannot be with certainty explained, but it seems most likely that it is a mere twisting of the Greek APHΣ, and that the intention is to portray the Greek war-god. The type suits Ares perfectly.

* A long dissertation on her by Hoffmann, l. c., p. 130.

Inscriptions.

PIOM

Pallas, or Roma; holds spear and shield.

Mr. Thomas reads PIAH, 'Rhea' (?). But PIOM, or even POM, is nearer to the actual legend, and the types of Pallas and Roma can scarcely be distinguished; I am therefore inclined to find here an impersonation of the great city, such impersonation being usual in contemporary Roman coins.

САРАΠΟ

Sarapis, holds sceptre; modius on head.

ΩΡΟΝ

Deity, wearing modius, holds sceptre.

[ΩΡΟΗ ?]

I am disposed to identify this figure with the Greek Uranus, though he may almost as well stand for the Indian Varuna.

(β.) PERSIAN DEITIES.

ΑΘΡΟ, }
ΑΘΡΟ }

Fire-god, holding hammer and tongs.

Male figure, holding wreath and tongs.

This is the Iranian fire-god, called by Mr. Thomas Atars; but his form is copied from that of the Greek Hephaestus.

ΑΡΑΕΙΧΡΟ

Sun-god, with hand raised. (Persian?)

The origin of the name is obscure: it may even be a mere corruption of ΑΡΔΟΧΡΟ.

ΑΡΟΟΑΣΓΟ

Male deity, holding wreath, horse beside him.

The first letter has usually been corrected to A. Hoffmann, however, observes that as it stands the name is near to the Persian word Luhrasp. It is not certain that we have here a sun-god, the horse, his only marked attribute, being not necessarily solar.

ΜΑΝΑΟ-ΒΑΓΟ

Moon-god, four-armed, seated on throne.

Inscriptions.

Types.

MEIPO, }
MIOPO, }
[ONIO]

Mr. Thomas interprets the legend 'Māonh Bago,' a particular form of the Iranian moon-deity. Hoffmann recognizes the deity as Bahman (Manō Vohū). Moon-god, holds sceptre, wreath, ankus, &c. Mao is a Zend name for the moon-god.

Radiate sun-god, holds sceptre, wreath, &c. [In one case the inscription accompanies a figure of Nanaia.]

The form MIOPO does not, so far as I know, occur. The deity intended seems therefore rather to be the Iranian sun-god Mihira, than his Graeco-Roman counterpart Mithras.

NANA

See above, under Greek deities.

Victory, holding wreath and sceptre.

The Zend word Vanant stands for the star of victory (Hoffmann). Mr. Thomas considers the legend to refer to Anandates, a Persian deity mentioned by Strabo.* But he was a male deity, and of his character we know nothing.

OΔΔO

Wind-god running.

"Zend, 'wind-god,' vātō" (Hoffmann). The type is very characteristic, and decidedly original.

OΠAΓNO

War-god; holds spear and sword.

The legend has been read OΠAΓNO, and supposed by Mr. Thomas to refer to Agni. Hoffmann considers the deity to be the Persian war-god Varhran, or Bahram.

ΦAPPO

times wears winged helmet, or stands on a fire; sometimes holds the caduceus of Hermes, and even his purse.

The Persian word far or farr signifies fire, and that the deity is a fire-god is evident. Hoffmann calls him the god of victory, hwarenanh, "Hoheits und Sieges-glanz."

(γ.) INDIAN DEITIES.

ΑΡΔΟΧΡΟ
[ΔΟΧΡΟ]

Female deity, holding a cornucopiae.

The type is nearer to that of the Greek Tyche than to any other figure. The legend has been regarded as a transcription of Ardha-ugra, half or consort of Śiva, Pārvatī. And that ΟΚΡΟ stands for Śiva is certain, as we shall presently see: but there still remains for explanation the aspirate Χ for Κ, as well as the curious circumstance that the cruel and relentless Pārvatī should appear in so mild and propitious a form. Hoffmann considers the deity intended to be the Persian Ashis, daughter of Ahuro, goddess of fortune. Others suppose her to be Lakshmī, the Indian goddess of fortune, who closely corresponds to Tyche.

ΜΑΑΧΝΟ

War-god Skanda, holding standard and sword.

There can be little doubt that the legend represents the Sanskrit Mahāsena, 'ruler of a great army,' an epithet of both Śiva and Skanda. The figure so nearly resembles that of Siva in the present series, that it is safe to identify it. Later, Mahāsena reappears, in somewhat a different form.

OKPO

Siva, standing with trident and ball, in the form of a shell.

Siva having four arms, in which he holds a trident, a conch-shell, a sword, and a wreath or a phallus. The phallus is sometimes phallic.

There has been a quite unnecessary doubt as to the identification of this figure; Hoffmann calls it "Pantheon aus Zens, Poseidon, and Hermes," &c. No doubt there is a Greek type, but the attributes prove beyond a doubt that Siva (Ugā) is intended. The thunderbolt, goat, and all attributes of that deity as seen in Hindu pictures, and the special arrangement of the hair and the phallic nature also belong to him especially. On some of the late coins Siva has three

SKANDO KUMARO BIZATO

Two figures of armed deities: one holding a sword and spear, the other a sword and spear.

These figures also can be identified as Skanda, the Hindu god, or as an epithet of Kumāra, the prince, and V. called in the Mahābhārata a son and a grandson of Skanda.

On a late coin this attribute has been called a spear. Its form is that of a Greek thunderbolt in the hand of Siva shows the phallic nature of that figure.

Types.

Two figures, as before; between them a deity, who is apparently horned.

In this remarkable group we find again Skanda Kumāra, and Viṣākha: the third figure appears to be Mahāsena, who is here differentiated from Siva. See above, under 'Greek Deities.'

Buddha seated cross-legged (Pl. xxxii. 14).

These coins are most interesting as giving us the earliest known artistic representation of Buddha. The second and longer legend seems to be a transcript of Advaya Buddha Śākyamuni.* On a British Museum specimen CARMA is clear; the old reading CAMANA, with its interpretation Sramana, must therefore be given up.

The style in which these various figures are represented is remarkable; and points clearly to a local school.

There are a few set schemes according to which all these are arranged. Nanna (xxvi. 10) is in exactly the same as Ardostro (xxvi. 6). The sun-god (xxvii. 9) finds his parallel in the moon-god (xxvii. 22). Pallas, or Roma (xxviii. 40) from Ares (xxviii. 17) only in the length of her chiton. This, of course, it is evidently futile to seek the originals of the types we find, as one might be tempted to do, on the Roman aurei in contrast. Thus the Roma (xxviii. 20) is closely like Pallas on the aureus of Galba, and the Victory (xxviii. 13) nearly resembles

* The word advaya is due to a suggestion of Mr. Rendell; the full form would be advaya-śākyamuni, 'the one speaker of the one knowledge.'

WEIGHTS

Victory on an aureus of Otho; yet we have no right in these similar cases to assume that the Roman coin is the prototype, the Indian coin the copy. Rather both coin-types are copies conventional and widely current mode of representing the Within the limits set by their conventional notions as to attire and drapery the artists employed by the Scythic kings move in they vary attributes continually, and in the case of Siva even do a type quite different from anything to which they can be accustomed in a Greek school.

V. WEIGHTS.

It is maintained by Gen. Cunningham that the earliest Greek coins of India, those of Sophytes, are struck not on the Attic standard, but on a native standard which is based on the rati or grain of abrus precatorius. Of these grains 32 weigh, according to Cunningham, 58½ English gr., according Thomas 56 gr. We thus reach a unit, the purāna, followed in early punched silver coins of India; and that the money of Sophytes follows the same standard is likely enough, though if so it is rather over-weight.

Apart from these specimens, all the earlier coins of the kings Greek descent which were issued in India and the north of the Caucasus, are struck on the Attic standard (drachm. 67.5 grains) which Alexander made use in the regions which he conquered, and which was maintained Seleucid kings who succeeded him in Asia.

The earliest monarch to strike on another standard is Buerates and in the reigns of his successors, Heliccles and Antialcidas, the Attic standard is gradually given up, the new standard advancing in conjunction with the custom of using on the coins Indian transcripts of the Greek legends.

INTRODUCTION.

This new standard appears to be identical with that called by metrologists the Persian, the standard on which coins were struck in all parts of the Persian Empire, by the sign stamped with the figure of the Persian king, which have freely circulated in the northern parts of India, which tribute to the Persians. The standard used by the Indians for their coins, which they issued before the Greek conquest, is as we already remarked different. The present standard therefore not to be native to India, but an importation from the Persian standard the unit or drachm weighs 84-86 grains: before the lower standard of the Greek kings of India be-we must call the heavier pieces, which weigh as a maximum grains, didrachms; and the smaller pieces, which weigh up to 40 grains, hemidrachms. Hitherto the larger pieces have usually been called as didrachms, and the smaller as hemidrachms, of Attic standard, which is clearly wrong. But Sallet also appears to be in supposing that the larger pieces are tetradrachms, and the of a standard reduced from the Attic. For the in the Attic standard to that which I call the Persian takes ideally, and is evidently due not to any sinking of standard, adoption for purposes of convenience of a different weight before the Indo-Scythic period follow the Attic standard, somewhat debased. The Indo-Scythic gold money, as we have already observed, p. liii, is standard of the aurei of Rome.

Following table gives approximately the normal or standard of coins in the various metals issued in India by Greek and kings.

Page 68, no. 4, & p. 69, nos. 9, 10—The object described in the text as a whip over the king's shoulder seems to be merely the falling ends of the regal diadema, greatly exaggerated. On the coins of Azes and succeeding kings this view is adopted.

103, 105—The first letter in the name of Gondophares (𑀧𑀲𑀭𑀸𑀓) is transliterated sometimes as ga and sometimes as gu. It may stand for either, or even gam.

To this Supplement belong three plates, the figures in which are in most cases due to Gen. Cunningham's valuable papers in the Numismatic Chronicle, and are reproduced by his kind permission. In one or two instances coins have been inserted here which were acquired for the British Museum too late for them to figure in their proper places.
